INTERNATIONAL

- American lawmakers – have introduced a new bill in the US Senate that is aimed at breaking up tech giants like Google and Facebook's online ad business
- ✓ The bill, if passed, would ban companies processing more than $20 billion in ad business annually from participating in more than one part of the digital ad process

- ✓ Google's parent Alphabet reported $68 billion in revenue in January-March 2022, of which $54.7 billion was generated by advertising.

$20BN AD BIZ CAP

- The bill seeks to ban firms with over $20bn ad business in a year from participating in more than one part of the digital ad process
- If passed, it would impact firms like Google, which are involved in multiple steps of the digital ad process
- Facebook could also be required to divest significant part of its ad business

- ✓ The Competition and Transparency in Digital Advertising Act is likely to directly impact big tech firms like Google, which profits from multiple steps of the digital ad process.
 - ✓ After the legislation, Google would not be able to stay in all those businesses and it will have to choose in which part of business it wants to stay.
 - ✓ Meta Platforms' Facebook may also be impacted by the bill and could be required to divest a significant part of its ad business.
 - ✓ Google operates tools that help firms transact in online ads, as well as the auction houses or exchanges where they happen in few seconds
 - ✓ The bill was introduced by a group of senators representing Democrats and Republicans on the judiciary subcommittee on antitrust
 - ✓ The legislation would be the most significant change to antitrust law in a generation.
 - ✓ It would also require smaller companies, processing over $5 billion in digital ad transactions annually, to follow new rules.
- The UN General Assembly - elected the Czech Republic to the Human Rights Council to fill the vacancy left by Russia, whose membership was suspended recently
- ✓ On April 7, the General Assembly adopted a resolution to suspend Russia's membership in the Geneva-based Human Rights Council after Russia launched a "special military operation" in Ukraine.
 - ✓ Russia immediately decided to terminate its membership in the 47-member council.
 - ✓ In the by-election held recently, the Czech Republic was elected to replace Russia for the remainder of its three-year term that ends on December 31, 2023
 - ✓ The Czech Republic was elected with 157 votes in favour, and 23 abstentions.

- ✓ The seats on the council are divided among regional groups and a replacement for Russia had to come from an East European country.
- ✓ The Czech Republic was the only candidate for the seat on the Human Rights Council
- ✓ The Human Rights Council, established by the UN General Assembly in 2006, is a UN body to promote and protect human rights.
- ✓ The members of the council are elected by the General Assembly for staggered three-year terms.
- ✓ Since its February 24 invasion of Ukraine, Russia has lost its spot on multiple UN bodies, including the executive boards of UN Women and the UN children's agency UNICEF, the Committee on Non-governmental Organizations, World Tourism Organization and the Permanent Forum on Indigenous Issues.
